HOW TO PERFECT YOUR POSTURE

My grandmother had a peculiar way to cure to bad posture Growing up, if she saw me slouching, she would not-so-gently take the knuckle of her pointer finger and, beginning at the base of the spine, run it up the entire thing. The motion would immediately force me to sit up straight and pull the shoulder blades back. Although the method was rather old-school, she swore it would save me from a lifetime of hunching.

Years later, I still think about her when I find myself sitting at a desk or on the couch for way too long. And over the past year, this has occurred way more often than I'd like to admit. There are all kinds of terms for it-tech neck, hunchback—but whatever you call it, physicians agree it is a real problem. When left unchecked, it can cause chronic pain, limited range of motion, spinal misalignment and

Luckily there are a host of cutting-edge tools and exercises proven to help straighten you out,

THE TEST: HOW TO KNOW IF YOU HAVE BAD POSTURE

There is a simple test to see if you suffer from bad posture. All you need is a tape measure and a Inter is a sample test to see if you suffer from boad posture. All you need is a tage measure and ifferied. Stand against the wall with the back of your head, shoulder blades and glutes touching the wall. Your feet will be a few inches away. Then measure the distance from your neck to the wall and the distance from your low back to the wall. If the difference between the two measurements is greater than an inch or two, your spine is most likely out of alignment.

Without using the test, you can often identify bad posture by a couple of classic symptoms rounded shoulders, extreme curved spine or a neck that juts forward.

"Team Foster is proud to be a longstanding advertiser in the Bellevue Club Reflections magazine. I was one of the early advertisers when the BCRM was just being published. All of these years later, we continue to find this publication to be one of the most effective – targeting a specific & key demographic for our business. Even during the economic downturn, when we had to make tough marketing budget choices, we never considered cutting back on our space in BCRM. It's that relevant of a publication and one of the best marketing tools we have."
